Verbal Description

Stamp fragment. Top bottom edge is notched. There doesn't seem to be a side edge - I don't think it eroded away either.

There is a design panel of left pointing herringbones and below this it looks like there is another design panel, but this is where the stamp broke.

Both edges are slanted on the back, corner is eroded in the back.

Traces of white paint are visible in the crevices of the notches, and, to a lesser extent, in the herring bones.

Although the top of the hill is not very high, it is a very good place to sit and watch the sun set. The view is very good and the sun is very bright. The sky is very blue and the sun is very red. The sun is very hot and the sky is very hot. The sun is very bright and the sky is very bright. The sun is very hot and the sky is very hot. The sun is very bright and the sky is very bright.
